Program: UCLA Design Media Arts — Social Software (Attn: Lauren McCarthy)

Description of services. Aesthetic Inc. has authored and is delivering technical documentation for the UCLA Social Software program over the 2026 academic cycle, including written specifications, reference material, and architectural descriptions of the runtime, language, and instructional tools used by students and faculty, together with an analysis of the software in production use across UCLA Design Media Arts and a survey of the open-source and proprietary stacks on which that practice depends. Deliverables are furnished in written form and published on the Social Software program website at sosoft.arts.ucla.edu for ongoing reference by students, faculty, and the public. No software license, hardware, or resalable good is included; the engagement is services-only.
